AMERICA'S DIRTY POWER SECRETS

This book reveals the dirty little secrets America's connected and powerful elites use to keep you in check and themselves in luxury, abundance - and in control.

There are a number of these secrets, actually. Here is the first one:

Big Secret No. 1: Votes are the real means to Power.

The power elites are in control because they get you to vote for them and for their bought and paid-for political lackeys.

They even control who gets to be in a position where he or she could be elected to any important office.

They control the two major parties that privately toss your votes (your power) back and forth between them like kids playing with a beach ball – while publicly pretending to be “at each other's throats”.

They control ‘big religion.’

They control the courts.

They control the corporate media that tell people who ‘has a chance’ to be elected and who doesn't.

They control the supply of money and the rate of interest you pay on your car loan and mortgage.

They control the outcome of elections through the amount of money they channel to a candidate or party, and if that doesn't work, through voting machines.

They control the price of energy - the money you pay for gas at the pump and for heating and cooling your home.

They control the tax laws that say how much money your employer has to withhold from your paycheck.

They control how much money you can set aside for your retirement.

They control where you will put your money for investment.

They control the information you get to base your life's decisions on.

They control what you and your kids learn in school.

They control what 'lessons' you learn from movies and TV.

They control where and how your tax money is spent.

They control where your kids are sent to fight and die abroad, never in the service of defending the country itself, but always in the service of some ill-defined, ill-conceived "national interest".

They control the buying power of your very money itself.

In short, they control your life – and you just keep voting for them (or one of theirs) even though you know they never listen to you. That's why you're so pissed off.

The question is, how do they get you to keep giving them your vote? How can they get an entire population of 300 million people to give them a virtual license to do all of the things we just listed?

Easy.

Big Secret Mo. 2: The elites control who and what you get to vote for.

As things stand right now, you have no say in that. As things stand right now, you have no way to make them give you a candidate to vote for who really represents you and what you want (and who won't turn on you once you get him elected!) You only have a choice between two almost equally repulsive candidates – and so you vote for the devil you already know!

Bad choice!

Big SOLUTION No. 1: NEVER vote for the same ‘devil’ twice!

By simply denying the same guy your vote the second time around, you deny him – and the system - your power. You make it clear to him that he won’t be able to make a career out of controlling other people’s lives. Once enough people understand this simple truth and act on it, that alone will discourage a lot of bad people from even trying to run for office.

Of course, so far you are only one voter. Your vote alone is not going to make that much of a difference – but you already know that voting for the same devil again and again will only get you the same result, again and again. At the very least, you now know that you have nothing to lose if you refuse to vote for him again.

This is absolutely within your power to do.

It is your decision and nobody else’s, so this is your first baby step to regaining your individual political clout. Simply deny the same old devil your vote the second time around, every time.

Here is your second baby step. If you take this step, you are immediately, effectively, and unquestionably doubling the effect of your voting power.

That second small baby step is

Big SOLUTION No. 2: ALWAYS vote for the challenger!

If you don’t vote at all, the first devil is only one vote down, but if you vote for his challenger, he all of a sudden is two votes down. How is that for impact? Without any additional effort or time involvement on your part, you have suddenly doubled your impact. You have withdrawn your power from the rigged-up election racket and turned it against it. You have just doubled your personal political clout.

There is one – and only one – reason why most Americans are not doing this at every election, without fail, automatically and virtually by reflex, and that is because they (are led to) believe that any challenger is “even worse” of a choice than the incumbent, especially if he is from the ‘other party.’

Big Secret No. 3: THE MYTH of the “Lesser Evil”

The truth is that the ‘lesser evil’ almost always turns out to be at least equal, if not the worse, evil of the two choices you are given. Just think about Bush and how the GOP’s right-wing talkshow hosts drilled into you (if you listened) that he was the lesser evil compared to Al Gore or John Kerry – and look what he turned out to be!

If Bush can be thanked for anything he did while he was in office, it is his astonishing success in destroying the myth of the ‘lesser evil’. He is living proof that this is a false argument, a mere chimera.

Now that you know this secret, you can guard yourself against it and vow from now on to ALWAYS vote for the opponent, no matter what. It doubles your power and denies the system access to it at the same time. You are no longer a dupe. You have made a decision that was outside their box. You have just gained a big part of your freedom back. If freedom is anything at all, then it is the power to make your own decisions.

Naturally, it goes without saying that, if you have a really good candidate and he really represents what you want and does it, you are free to keep voting for him. After all, the power of decision yours alone. Not mine, and not anyone else’s. It’s just that in order to responsibly exercise your duty as an American citizen, you must learn to deny this corrupted system your knee-jerk consent.

All political power exists by the active or tacit consent of the governed.

All legitimate political power is by the active consent of the governed. Illegitimate power can only perpetuate itself if it can somehow manage to obtain the tacit (passive) consent of the governed. This can be achieved either by active threats, or by deception.

Big Secret No. 4: Organized voters have MORE power.

If you get five people to never vote for the same devil twice and always vote for the challenger, you have just multiplied your power by ten. You have denied the incumbent five votes and have added five to his strongest opponent.

If the incumbent knew what you are doing, do you think he would try to keep you from doing it? You bet! His knee-jerk response will be to promise you the sky, just so you won't tell this big secret to any more people – but you already know what his promises are worth. Nothing. So, just keep voting that way and keep telling other people to do the same thing. It will make a huge difference.

The easy way to do this is to send people you talk to a copy of this e-book. Better yet, send them to the website where you got this e-book. If they are pissed off enough already, you can be sure they will get the e-book themselves – and then it was their decision to get it and they will be more open to actually using and applying the secrets revealed in it.

People don't like to be told what to think – at least not openly. Secretly, most people are begging for it, but no one wants to think of him or herself as someone who lets others tell them what to think. I know that's true because I am the same way.

Big Secret No. 5: Political Parties 'SUCK'!

This is not just a mild epithet. Political parties quite literally do 'suck'. They suck political power away from you and transfer it to them. When you join a party, you join it because you believe it represents you, at least better than "the other one" does – or so you think.

What you don't know is that by doing so you give up your power to make your own decisions. Some leadership-types will invariably compete to get to the helm of power within that party and make all or most of the decisions for it – and you. That's how parties invariably end up selecting bad candidates to champion their alleged 'cause.' Hey sell out to the lure of power.

These bad candidates get selected because they made a devil's bargain with the party leadership. The leadership tells the candidate: "Look, if you promise to vote and act our way once you are elected, we will throw the party's support behind you. If you don't, we'll back your opponent, capiche?"

In political parties, leadership positions themselves are elective, so in order to get to the 'top', so-called leaders have to make their own devil's bargains – and the story goes on and on. If you put your faith in a party, you sell your soul. Well, maybe not your soul, but you definitely give up your power and your opportunity of being free from what we ominously call "the system" here. Political parties sustain the system. In fact, they are the system.

Even small third parties succumb to the same vice. In the end, their reason for existence is to attain power, i.e., to make their party big and influential enough so they gain the ability to have their members elected into positions of influence. Naturally, they'll never tell you that, though.

In order to get their candidates elected, they have to make all kinds of devils bargains, either with the major parties or by betraying their alleged platform in order to appeal to a sufficiently broad slice of the public spectrum. In other words, they begin to feel the need to have the corporate media on their side because, to them, that's the only way to get into the consciousness of the majority of voters. (To you, it no longer is, as you will see further down.)

No matter what the bargain, no matter what ideological concessions must be made, the excuse is always the same: "Well, it's better if we have the power than for our opponents to have it." As a result, fudging around the edges and making backroom deals becomes a way of life – and there goes the alleged purpose for the party's existence: its so-called 'platform.'

The point of this excursion into the nature of political parties is that, even though it is necessary to organize in order to maximize the effect of your vote, you should stay outside of political party structures because these structures are by their very nature power suckers. Thomas Jefferson knew this very well, even back in the 1700's. He abhorred the thought of political parties.

Big SOLUTION No. 3: You don't have to play their game.

The alternative is to organize outside of entrenched power structures, and that is indeed not only possible, but very beneficial. That this works has been proven over and over throughout human history.

In our political system, votes are everything. If you get more votes than any of the other guys, you win - period.

As far as laws go, once you are an elected official, there are a certain number of things the law you have to operate under does not allow you to do. That law is the Constitution. Some of the things the Constitution does not allow politicians to do is to legislate away fundamental rights that belong to you from birth.

In other words, the Constitution is the law that set up the current government structure we live under. It is therefore the source of all law because it is the source of all lawmaking power. Yet, it gave the politicians that operate under only very limited and carefully defined powers.

You have heard about this in elementary school in passing, but not for long enough and not consistently enough to really drive the lesson home. Instead, everything you learned in middle school or high school history lessons and beyond, and everything you see on the news on TV or read in the newspaper, tells you that, at least since the American Civil War, the days of limited powers are over because that concept is just 'so outmoded' – but guess what?

Big Secret No. 6: The Constitution is STILL the supreme law.

That fact alone gives you a supremely powerful weapon against everything that pisses you off in modern government, like all of the things you read at the www.pissed-off-and-voting.com website, for example.

Every politician, every appointed administrator, every policeman, every soldier, every judge, and every lawyer has to swear a solemn oath upon taking office to “... uphold and defend the Constitution of the United States against all enemies, foreign and domestic.”

The main problem in this country is that nobody ever holds these politicians to their oath of office, and that is the direct cause of about 90 percent of our political and current economic problems.

As you well know, Congress makes laws willy-nilly that violate the very foundations of natural law upon which the US Constitution rests. They violate your rights and your freedom as an individual citizen all the time – because they always have an excuse or ‘emergency’ that supposedly overrides these ‘outmoded’ constitutional restrictions. Those excuses or emergencies are conveniently called ‘public policy.’

As a voter who is mired in the two-party structure, and who always votes for the ‘lesser evil’ and who gives his US Congressman, Senator, his State Representative or Senator, or his city councilman or mayor so much slack because, after all, they are “on your side” as they always claim, you are completely incapable of forcing your leaders to obey the law they swore to uphold.

In fact, as such a voter, everything you do supports the very system that pisses you off all of the time, and you don’t even realize it. You only know that they, the politicians, completely ignore what you want them to do, all of the time, but you neither know why they do that or how they constantly get away with it.

But now, you do!

That knowledge is power. Your power. That knowledge, in you, takes more power away from those who piss you off than anything else in the world. Why? Because it reveals the next big secret to you:

Big Secret No. 7: Yes, you CAN change the system!

You absolutely can. Remember that we have discovered that voting is everything.

Uninformed votes keep these creeps in power. Without the votes of you, your friends, your family, your colleagues and fellow citizens around the country, these jokers would have to go back and get a real job and would have to actually do something productive for a living.

They also wouldn't have been able to vote themselves a nice cushy government pension that never dies like yours recently did (to which they are currently entitled to for the rest of their lives even if they lose their seats in government after only one term!). Nor would they be able to give themselves a pay raise for leaving you and your family poor and powerless by their spinelessness, lawlessness, and incompetence.

Big SOLUTION No. 3: You can get OTHERS to vote for the challengers as well.

There are two very easy ways of doing this:

- (1) You can send this e-book (or better yet, a link to the website at www.pissed-off-and-voting.com (or both) to your friends, family and colleagues, and
- (2) you can have them over for lunch, dinner, BBQ, or whatever, and tell them that you have a plan for keeping these fat cats from running off with your money, your power, and your children and grandchildren's money and power.

You can also do both. You can both send them this book with a link to the website and invite them over after they have read it. If you do this, it will be the beginning of the end for these power thieves, liars, and cheaters who claim to rule you and your life.

You could form a very simple type of organization that cannot be taken over by fat cat politicians and that doesn't depend on the corporate media for getting exposure or publicity.

If you tell your friends that they can invite their own friends over for lunch, dinner, or whatever, and do the same thing you just did, they will do so if they are pissed off enough, especially after they have read this book and have been to the website.

This will allow you to leverage your voting power a hundred, a thousand, or even a million-fold or more.

But what do you do then?

If you constantly vote incumbents at all levels of government out of office and their challengers in, you can keep the fat cats from staying in office for long enough to make a career of stealing your rights and your freedom – but how does that help you to actually find better candidates?

There are a few things to consider, here.

1. By the mere fact that you are doing this, you are keeping the sharks among would-be politicians (which means most of them) from ‘smelling blood.’ They simply won’t see as many benefits to getting elected if they know they will be there only for one term. That alone will raise the quality of the new talent that will come in and run for office.
2. You will signal to politicians of all stripes, parties, and colors that you are on to their game and that you won’t play ball by on their rigged playing field anymore. They will know that you now have the power to actually assert your will against them. Guess what? They will start to literally quake in their boots when you call them, or email them, or write to them, and they will do the unthinkable – they will listen, at least to a point.
3. The corporate lobby spends billions of dollars each year on gaining influence over politicians once they are in office. They do this because they know their target has a ninety percent chance or better of getting reelected! When the lobbyists and their employers see that nobody they spend their money on gets to stay long enough to turn into a good long term lackey for them, they will spend far less money on their effort because the cost-benefit equation just completely turned against them. As a result, the political system will become less corrupt in the process!

These three considerations alone are worth always voting for the challenger and organizing in this fashion to leverage your voting power, but there is more.

If you build an organization of this type it will consist of people who think like you. You will thereby automatically create a pool of potential candidates who are willing to run on what we call an independent constitutional platform, and who will be far more likely to stick to their oath of office after they get elected. Why? Because they will know that doing so is the only way they have any chance at staying in office once they win.

They will also know who elected them: you and your organization, and other organizations that are just like yours who were built by people who are just as pissed off as you are. Regular, law-abiding people who just want to live their lives as they see fit and who want to keep the politicians out of their lives as much as they can.

They will know that they were elected by people who know the secrets of political power that you are now discovering in this book. People like you, who just won't be fooled anymore.

That's what accountability is really all about, but more on that later.

These candidates will know that their power is limited by law – by the very law that set up the government and that created the very office they were just voted into. That will have a huge effect on their outlook on what they think they can get away with while occupying that office.

Big Secret No. 8: The real political power is IN THE STATES.

The federal Congress only has power to make laws that affect federal issues like national defense, the activities of ambassadors abroad, interstate commerce, etc.

All other power is specifically reserved to the several states and the people living in them by the Tenth Amendment to the Constitution. States, on the other hand all have their own Constitutions, some of which are even more restrictive than the one that controls the federal government.

Here is a real world example of that state power:

Once you manage to have your organization elect a law-abiding governor who will obey the Constitutions of your state and of the federal government as they apply to him, he can actually block much of the legislative mayhem that comes from Washington DC by way of the United States Congress.

As the state's top executive office holder, he could lawfully refuse to carry out any law that Congress has ever passed or may pass in the future that operates outside the strict power limitations of the federal Constitution or that attempts to override your State Constitution on any issue over which the federal government doesn't have specifically delegated exclusive power.

The "REAL ID" Act comes to mind, here. By it, Congress is trying to force you to accept a federal standardized ID with biometric information embedded in it without which you will not be able to enter a federal building in your state or board a federally controlled commercial airliner to fly where you want to go – something that is completely un-American.

Another example for such a law is the incredibly misnamed "USA PATRIOT" Act by which Congress gave the FBI the power to enter and search your home without a proper court warrant, search your papers and belongings, download your computer's hard drive, and leave again without telling you that they were even there.

There are many more such laws, but you get the idea. A law-abiding state governor can block the enforcement of these federal laws in your state. He can also veto any "bill" (unsigned law) that the state legislature puts before him and force them to override his veto with a two-thirds vote if that bill happens to violate either your state or the federal Constitution.

That's powerful stuff.

So, why go for state governor?

It is easier to create organizations of this type to elect a state governor than a congressman because it can spread easily throughout your county and state without being restricted to a Congressional or legislative voting district. Your friends probably don't all live in your voting district, and neither do their friends – but they would have to if you wanted to get a good Congressman or state legislator elected. Only people who live in your district have voting power over his office.

Of course, the same principle applies to your state's two US senators. An effort to elect one of them will be statewide as well. It's just that he will be only one of one hundred in the US Senate, while your state's governor will be "the" man" or "the" woman all by him or herself.

Yet, even though you initially focus on electing a good state governor, by the time your organization grows to generate sufficient numbers to actually locate, promote, and elect a state governor from your own ranks, you will very likely have the clout necessary to elect a good congressman in your district as well.

At the very least, you will have sufficient numbers to un-elect your current congressional incumbent - at will.

Even if you don't have a full majority that allows you to elect any candidate you want at will from your ranks alone, you will by then have a sufficient number of swing voters to move from the incumbent's tally sheet over to the challenger's. If you and your organization do this, it means you have just held your incumbent accountable for his past unlawful votes in Congress. You have just taken a giant step toward letting Congress as a whole know 'where to stick it.'

There is a host of more information about this type of plan at the website.

The good news is that a plan of this sort is already being implemented in many of the fifty states of the Union. You can connect with the top level organizers in your state by simply sending us an email with your contact information and we will pass it on. If there aren't any organizers yet, you can volunteer to be one yourself.

The beauty of this plan is that it does not in any way depend on the rigged system already in place. Numbers are everything. If you can activate a large enough number of pissed off voters in your state and bring them to the polls at election time, you win – regardless of the lack of any help from the media or from one of the two major parties.

Big SOLUTION No. 5: How to find OTHER pissed-off Voters like you.

To get started with this, there are many ways in which you can find and contact other pissed-off voters like yourself. Don't try to talk regular folks who don't see the abusiveness and corruption of the current system yet into it at the beginning. They will start paying attention when they see your numbers grow.

You may think that all of this sounds like a load of work, but it really isn't. You can start an organization like this by simply meeting for lunch with your new contacts once a week. Your level of commitment in this is completely up to you. Just realize that your results will naturally depend on your level of commitment.

The point is that there IS a solution to the problem, it IS within reach of every American who cares, and it is absolutely and unquestionably doable. In other words (and this is “the” number one Big Power Secret in America):

The Really Big, Big Power Secret:

YOU* (not ‘they’) have the REAL POWER!

There is nothing and no one who can take the truth of this statement away from you.

The Founders of this country weren't kidding around when they wrote that all government rests on the consent of the governed. They knew it was true and they meant every word of it – and it is still true today.

The elites all count on your laziness and contentedness with the current state of affairs. What they haven't taken into account is how pissed-off you really are and how many other Americans feel the same way. That's part number one. Part number two is that they haven't taken into account the possibility that you may ever come to discover their dirty little power secrets while you are pissed off enough to actually spring into action!

This, they have never foreseen. They have no contingency plans for this.

Their entire power base rests on their assumption that you are

- (1) a coward,
- (2) stupid, and
- (3) lazy.

They have spent decades creating a federalized school system that educates you and other presumed subjects into abject ignorance, passivity, and complacency, and a corporate media system that perpetuates your childhood education and solidifies it throughout the rest of your life..

They were wrong.

Now, it's your turn!

RECAP:

Let's just recap these secrets and their solutions for a minute:

Big Secret No. 1: Votes are the real means to power.

Big Secret Mo. 2: The elites control who and what you get to vote for.

Big SOLUTION No. 1: NEVER vote for the same devil twice!

Big SOLUTION No. 2: ALWAYS vote for the challenger!

Big Secret No. 3: The Myth of the 'Lesser Evil'

Big Secret No. 4: Organized voters have more power.

Big Secret No. 5: Political Parties ‘Suck’!

Big SOLUTION No. 3: You don’t HAVE TO play their game!

Big Secret No. 6: The Constitution still rules

Big Secret No. 7: Yes, you can change the system!

Big Secret No. 8: The real political power is IN THE STATES.

Big SOLUTION No. 4: You can get others to vote for the challenger as well.

Big SOLUTION No. 5: How to find other pissed-off Voters just like you.

And the Really Big, Big Power Secret:

YOU (not they) have the REAL POWER!!

No More Excuses!

You now know the American power elites' real secrets to power.

That means you no longer have an excuse for losing your freedom. In that sense, ignorance really was bliss, I suppose, but to those who choose to remain in it, the bliss is empty and will from now on be very, very short-lived.

You absolutely can effect real change (and change for the better, not for the worse or just for the sake of the word itself) by simply emailing a link to the web site and a copy of this book to your friends, family members, and colleagues who you know are as ticked off as you are about what's happening in this country. Never mind the contented sheep. They'll come on board later.

The key to you regaining your power and to withholding it from the elites rests on the foundation laid down by the Founders of these United States of America. You, individually, still have both the freedom and the power (not just the theoretical 'right') to actually change everything!

It is true that you cannot do this all by yourself, but you can do it by making use of your rights to free speech, free association, and your right to vote. Nobody can take these away from you unless you refuse to exercise them, and even then, it's you who forswears their exercise, not "they" who took them away from you. That proves that the power really is still yours and yours alone.

What you do with that knowledge is up to you. Just remember that what you, individually, decide to do or not to do has a tremendous impact on the future of America. No more excuses! If you decide not to act on this knowledge, that's your right – but, in that case, please be prepared to accept responsibility for the inevitable consequences of your inaction.

In the end, this is not about the power of the elites and their schemes designed to retain it. It is all about your knowledge of your true power and your choice to exercise that power, or not.

I wrote this book and launched this website because I am selfish. I want my freedom, but I also know that I can only be truly free if everyone around me is free as well. That's my reason. I hope it is your reason for acting as well.

The point is not to amass power so you can wield it over others, but so that no one, not us and not 'them', can wield it over anyone else, because such power begets corruption of the mind and of the heart.

Freedom is only possible when the accumulation and exercise of political power is restricted – and that is only possible if people are willing to enforce the Constitution on their elected and public servants.

I pray for your help and for your ultimate success!

APPENDIX

The American Power-Lunch Network

A Battle Plan* for successfully enforcing the Constitution on all of America's elected state and federal officials

THE GOAL: Elect a constitutional state governor in each of the fifty states by 2014.

REQUIREMENTS: A well-organized plurality of educated and independent constitutional voters in each state.

THE PLAN: Build a state-by-state, nationwide network of independent constitutional “power lunch” voter groups that are working outside the co-opted two-party and media information systems.

The Benefit:

Once any state's Lunch Network chapter is capable of electing a constitutional state governor, that state will automatically have a sufficient number of constitutional voters in each voting district to *at least boot out any lawbreaking federal or state incumbent. After that, with a little more effort, the state will have the numbers it takes to elect any constitutional candidate, at will, through our network alone! Imagine the effect in Congress if a large state's entire contingent of lawmakers is a constitution-defender like Ron Paul. How is that for a benefit?

This is the only way for us to ever gain control of our elected officials. It is the only way to win and to once and for all enforce the Constitution on them. Why does Ron Paul keep winning in his congressional district? He has enough voters in his district! Period.

Because we are operating outside the normal channels of political power distribution and information dissemination, nothing and no one can stop us in this effort. Only you can – by failing to participate.

(If you are not clear about why we need a coordinated action plan that targets the fifty governorships of the country, and why this must be done outside the normal political and information infrastructure, click here. The following bullet points lay out how this can be done. Explanations of the practical benefit of, and reason for, each individual part of this battle plan are linked to throughout the text.)

The Plan:

1. We leverage the former Ron Paul Meetups network by forming a top-level organizer group in each state consisting of current organizers in each of the state's major metropolitan areas. It goes without saying that organizers of any other constitutional organizations are just as eligible to participate.
2. All lower level groups are by nature local. Each local organizer starts a lunch group in his area by inviting up to ten of his friends, colleagues or relatives to join the group. All groups will meet weekly. The primary purpose of the lunch groups is consistent, face-to-face voter education. The secondary purpose is to expand the network of constitutional voters. Growth without education is counterproductive. Education without growth is useless.
3. Every member of each lunch group is constantly encouraged and motivated to start his own lunch group among his own circle of friends. The organizer of the lunch group he was invited to provide the logistical, moral, and technical support required. Each member, in turn, fulfills the same function in his own group of ten.
4. The point is to achieve a geometric rate of growth through a matrix of ten. In theory, it takes only five levels down from each state's top group of ten in a completely filled matrix to reach one million voters.
5. By only doubling that number, for example (instead of completing a full new level), you now have 2 million voters – more than the 1.8 million votes that helped Rick Perry win the 2006 gubernatorial race in Texas, the second most populous state in the union!).
6. Each member will maintain primary contact with only 20 people at a time: ten from the group he was invited to, and the ten of his own group. Beyond that, there is peripheral involvement with an additional ten, namely one alternate contact in each of his own members' groups in case communication breaks down because of a member's sickness or similar reasons.
7. The organizer who invited a member to any lunch group supplies his members with short, hard-hitting, and to-the-point handouts to help in the recruiting process. Handouts are available from members of each state's top group of ten. They, in turn, receive them from the Texas group that initiated this effort or produce their own.
8. Potential candidates for governor who volunteer to run for state governor are passed up the line to the state's top-level group or organizers. The state organizers will vet each candidate via interviews (intense grilling regarding solidity of constitutional orientation) and full background checks. The state organizers will then select a candidate and pass information about him down through the network.

9. This is not an effort to build yet another party. Parties are power structures that are too easily co-opted. There will be no central database of members. Every member will only know twenty to thirty others. This prevents all takeover attempts.
